

We both have small carpets beside our respective beds. When we leave the beds our warm feet touch these first, softening the transition of the next step colder onto the wood floor. Before we leave our houses a mat proceeds the door and as we open it, its match waits on the other side to soften the first step outside.